

next generation workspace 2018/2019 International Research Residency Theatre for Young Audiences in Frankfurt

In cooperation with Künstlerhaus Mousonturm and Theaterhaus Frankfurt, the international theatre festival for young audiences “Starke Stücke” is offering international residency in three phases in the field of theatre for young audiences. International theatre makers, independent artists from the region as well as students of the Hessian Theatre Academy (HTA) interested in working in this field are invited to attend the festival Starke Stücke (27 February-11 March 2018) as a group. Subsequently, they can then continue exploring artistic inquiries of their own in residency in July 2018 and February 2019, followed by the chance to present (partial) results at Starke Stücke 2019 (19-31 March 2019).

next generation workspace

The research residency is divided into three phases and aims to encourage young theatre makers to more intensely explore the field of “Theatre for Young Audiences” against the backdrop of their own artistic practices. During a collective visit to the festival, all invited artists will be asked to formulate issues and questions together based on the viewing of select productions. The results of the group discussions will serve as a basis for the further exploration and practical examination of the materials and formulated lines of inquiry during the subsequent residency phase. The next generation workspace is designed to be an experimental lab open to active contribution and reformulation by its participants. All residency artists are invited to share their practical-artistic experience, methods of reflection and working processes with the group. The goal is to transition from a discussion of select festival productions and the reflection of personal work experience, approaches and positions in small groups on the subject of “Theatre for Young Audiences” to an artistic process. In this process, participants can engage in an open-ended exploration of personal research interests, specific topic or individual artistic formats. In 2019, participants will have the chance to open their research processes during the festival and to invite the public to take part in it.

First Phase

The residency group (12 participants) will discuss select productions from the festival program and meet international artists from the fields of theatre, dance and performance, as well as local presenters working for young audiences. Phase I focuses on exchange and the discussion of artistic practices and personal research interests as they relate to working with young audiences. During their visit, the participants will independently develop a shared structure for working together, as well as initial project ideas to be further developed in groups and/or in close collaboration among one another in the subsequent project phases. The first residency phase will be accompanied by Liljan Halfen (Starke Stücke, FrankfurtRheinMain) and Detlef Köhler (Festival Director Starke Stücke Frankfurt RheinMain).

Time and Place: 27 February - 11 March 2018, during Starke Stücke, Frankfurt and Rhine-Main Region

Second Phase

During the second residency phase in summer 2018, participants will work together or in small groups on the projects proposed during the festival. Phase II is a “Research Lab”. Here, ideas can be tested, discarded and re-concocted. The aim is not a finished product, but rather practical research on ways to implement artistic ideas for young audiences. For this, Mousonturm and Theaterhaus will provide rehearsal studios, as well as simple technical support and a small financial budget if necessary. Phase II will be mentored and accompanied by Philipp Karau (SKART & Masters of the Universe, Frankfurt), Liljan Halfen (Starke Stücke, FrankfurtRheinMain), Marcus Droß (Künstlerhaus Mousonturm, Frankfurt) and Susanne Freiling (Theaterhaus, Frankfurt).

Time and Place: 14 – 30 July 2018, Mousonturm and Theaterhaus, Frankfurt

Third Phase

During the last residency phase, directly before the Starke Stücke 2019 festival, participants can continue their research and subsequently present results during the festival. Here, participants have the chance to adapt the presentations before a young or intergenerational audience to personal artistic formats and so receive specific feedback within a protected environment. Simultaneously, participants can deepen their contacts to presenters and other creatives. At the end of Phase III, participants will moreover meet the next generation of new residents ...

Time and Place: 9 – 26 March 2019 (tbc), Mousonturm, Theaterhaus and Starke Stücke, Frankfurt and Region
